

A multi-layered, visual & physical two-woman show, created & performed by Yael Karavan and Naomi Silman, from award winning companies Lume Teatro, Brazil & Karavan Ensemble, UK.

“A clever, funny & moving exploration of motherland, heritage and the notion of ‘foreign-ness’, delivered in a variety of physical, visual and verbal languages” Dorothy Max Prior - Total Theatre

In the current global scenario of division and intolerance, two women living on opposite sides of the world but tied unconditionally to each other by their deep friendship and common ancestors try to unearth what connects us despite our differences.

With a solid reputation of more than 20 years in physical theatre, the performers take the audience on a journey of poetic imagery, humour and immersive elements to travel through time and space, unveiling the layers of their personal stories and ancestral backgrounds, tracing a line from the personal to the universal in the attempt to tackle some vital contemporary questions about their common paths such as identity, roots, displacement, borders, and the concept of a Home. Pupik – which means ‘navel’ in Hebrew – premiered in Brazil in 2015 and went on to tour throughout the country and to Portugal in 2016-2017. In 2018 the show is coming to the UK in a new English adaptation supported by Arts Council England.

24th & 25th July 8pm at Pavilion Theatre Worthing, BN11 3PX <https://worthingtheatres.co.uk/show/pupik/>

Wed 25th the show will start on a bus from Brighton at 7pm- <http://www.wegottickets.com/event/442675>
